Confirmation of non-profit work

Daniel Jinnefält (670401-4619) was a member of the International Committee of Swedish Ecodemics during 2000 and a member of the board of Swedish Ecodemics during the financial year 2001/2002.

Swedish Ecodemics is a network for organizations, committees and other interest groups which, at universities, are working with sustainable development. The work in the board consist among others of arranging national meetings for the member organizations, considering proposed legislation for the Swedish Ministries of Environment and Education, participating in both national and international conferences and running outgoing campaigns. The International Committee work in particular with international contacts and international conferences.

During 2001 Swedish Ecodemics' work was concentrated at local round table discussions on integration of sustainable development at Swedish universities and a project on climate change including a study circle in the member organizations.
